Summary

See our latest Browser: Tusk, the Free Speech Browser. <https://tuskbrowser.com/>

I started my career in real estate, founding one of the largest development companies in the Santa Barbara, California area. I've developed close to three-quarters of a billion dollars in real estate with institutional partners, including UBS, Rockwood Capital, and Copley Real Estate Advisors.

Success in real estate development brought me opportunities to invest in software development. My initial investment has become Cocoon, a full-time passion project in the digital privacy and security sector. I've been an entrepreneur from the beginning of my career, and many of the ideas implemented by Virtual World Computing have come from my enthusiasm for finding ways to solve complex problems with real-world solutions.

Experience

Virtual World Computing, LLC
CEO
2008 - Present (14 years)
Santa Barbara, California

My position as co-founder and CEO of Virtual World Computing has been the culmination of my entrepreneurial career and my work as a passionate advocate for a safer and more secure Internet. I spearheaded the planning and development of our flagship product, the cloud-based Cocoon browser. I serve as the chief fundraiser, team-builder, and ideas guy. I count it a privilege to work every day with people I admire for a product I believe in.

As Internet users become increasingly aware that their personal data is a commodity, one that big-name browsers are cashing in on, I'm thrilled to be able to offer people a free, cloud-based browser that allows the individual user to take back control over their own digital privacy and online security. Cocoon allows international users to access region-restricted US content from anywhere in the world, and uses military-grade encryption, secure cloud servers, and proxies to provide unprecedented security and privacy online.

Cocoon is currently available for desktop, laptop, and Android devices, and we're going to be rolling out disruptive new features in the near future.
