About

Stephan Paternot is co-founder & CEO of Slated, the world's first online film finance marketplace. Powered by machine-learning analytics, over 1,200 listed films have received over $1.25 billion in investor introductions as of 2018. Over half of 2018's Sundance Film Festival selections and Oscar nominated films were made by Slated members in producing, directing, and writing roles. In 2004, Stephan co-founded PalmStar, a film production and financing company that has produced and financed over 30 films including Hereditary (2018), Collateral Beauty (2016), Sing Street (2016) and John Wick (2014). Stephan is also the founder and general partner of the Actarus Funds. Founded in 2002, these angel funds have backed such companies as LendingClub, SecondMarket, Indiegogo, AngelList, Digital Currency Group, and many more.

Prior to these ventures, Paternot is best known for co-founding one of the first Internet community sites, theglobe.com, in 1994. The company set stock market history when it went public in 1998 with a record-setting IPO, pushing the company valuation to over $1 billion. Over a six-year span, the company grew to over 300 employees, and the website became one of the top thirty most trafficked sites in the world. In 1999 Stephan won the Ernst & Young Entrepreneur of the Year Award and in 2001 published his memoir, A Very Public Offering, detailing his experience at theglobe.com. A Very Public Offering was updated and reissued in 2018 in conjunction with the worldwide release of the National Geographic Television series Valley of the Boom, in which Paternot is featured as a character.

Solutions Design and Research Development

March 12, 2008, Dan worked with Stephan but on different teams

Stephan and his partner Todd came to me as students to find out how they might devise a project that would quickly become a real company. They were pioneers in the online social networking movement and understood in a pre-Google-, pre-Facebook-world, just how important online communities would be to the next wave of web development. ...see more

I had the great privilege to work for Stephan as he created a truly innovative organization and phenomenal place to work. Stephan is incredibly creative, detailed with a great business mind. He has the ability to motivate, drive and manage the people who worked for him. I would jump at the chance to work for him and highly recommend him.

I've had the privilege of working with Steph during the revolutionary years of the internet. He is a true believer in the power of the brand and invests in the human resources necessary to create and maintain a company's global brand awareness—from start-up to post IPO. He is , open to multiple and differing opinions and an advocate for innovative and alternative strategies. I have always appreciated ...see more
