SumZero was founded in 2008 by friends from Harvard College, and is currently the largest online community for professional investors, including hedge fund, mutual fund, and private equity analysts. Members routinely share actionable investment ideas in exchange for access to the ideas of other members. In addition to offering members access to high quality research, the Website enables members to message one another, rate each other's ideas, create profiles, and even apply for buy-side jobs. Thus, in addition to sharing investment information, analysts are provided a platform through which they can build their professional networks.

Summary

I lead the Engineering team at MeWe - where we're building the next generation social networking platform in a revolutionary new decentralized model. Our goal is to lead a movement to take back control from big tech and restore the original promise of the internet - to serve and empower people!

I'm interested in using technology to help people communicate, collaborate, and fulfill their potential. My former position at Project ECHO combined my experience building social networks and my passion for education, and used the management skills I've acquired over the past 18 years starting and growing companies. ECHO is a revolutionary model that democratizes knowledge, builds learning communities, and allows people in remote areas to learn the specialized knowledge to become experts.

As Chief Scientist at MeWe - a privacy focused next generation social platform - I hired and managed a great international team of developers building a world class web and mobile experience. And I learned an incredible amount about the white-hot social networking industry, and how to deliver a product people love to use.

Founder and former Executive Director of Fractal Foundation, a 501c3 in New Mexico. Experience teaching fractals and chaos theory to all ages and audiences around the world, including at multiple TEDx events; developed an award-winning full-dome video fractal show, licensed around the world; constructed 5 full-size fractal-inspired hot-air balloons - and pilot them whenever possible. Always interested in using technology in new ways to further the pursuit and sharing of art and science.

Specialties: Engineering Management, Product Management, Software development (Agile and non), Usability design, Fractal Art, Fractal Education, Hot-air Ballooning, Graphic Design, Web Design, Video editing, Grant-writing, Fund-raising

Summary

With over 18 years of experience in product management and growth consulting, I am the Head of Product at MeWe, the world's largest privacy-based social network on the blockchain. My mission is to bring web3 technologies to the masses, empowering anyone to benefit from ownership rights and data sovereignty.

I collaborate with cross-functional teams and external partners to deliver high-quality products that solve real customer problems and create value for the organization. I leverage data, user feedback, market research, and competitive analysis to identify opportunities, prioritize features, and define product vision and strategy. I also oversee the product development process, ensuring alignment with the business goals, user needs, and technical feasibility. Additionally, I devise and execute marketing campaigns and strategies to drive user acquisition, retention, and engagement. I have a passion for machine learning and blockchain technologies, and I am interested in moving more into the world of AI.
