Co-Host - Audio / Video Interviews of Semiconductor Industry Pioneers

July 2012 - Present (11 years 5 months)

Silicon Valley

In the late 1980s, Rob Walker, a Berkeley Electrical Engineer and an LSI Logic co-Founder decided to assemble an audio / video library of personal interviews with the visionaries of the semiconductor industry, in order to memorialize their personal stories of their technology innovations and business accomplishments that literally changed the world for ever, .

He decided to place these interviews at the Stanford University Libraries for all to view at will for educational and historical purposes. These interviews can be freely viewed at:

http://silicongenesis.stanford.edu/complete_listing.html

Due to declining health in 2012, Rob was unable to continue with active interviewing.

He asked me if I would continue to host the program for as long as possible - and I agreed.

Rob unfortunately passed in 2016, and his vision and legacy lives on here at Silicon Genesis.
