We invested in NYCE because we believe that the management team possesses character, hard work, and a great track record in this industry. Their portfolio is well thought out, the amenities, combined with the advanced esports lounges with North American Collegiate League make this a very high tech and savvy investment. Their message and want to bridge the financial gap and desire to make so many new millionaires is inspiring. We invest in character, and this is what Philip, Marlin and NYCE has.

Women and Millennials of color have inherited the worst economic conditions in history: Trillions in debt and a racial wealth gap that will take 228 years to close. We want to solve that by creating

Dmitrit Ishimbayev

As you know, the pandemic has wreaked havoc on the economy over the past year.

Underneath it all, there's an even greater epidemic, rampaging just as viciously—and for an even longer time: the racial+gender wealth gaps.

In spite of $1.3 trillion in spending power, it will take more than four lifetimes to narrow the wealth gap between Black and White communities.

The collage features several headlines: 'Why the racial wealth gap persists, more than 150 years after emancipation' from The Washington Post; 'How to Close the Racial Wealth Gap' from The New York Times; 'Black, Hispanic Americans twice as likely as whites to need Covid stimulus checks just to 'get by': Survey' from CNBC; and 'The economic impact of closing the racial wealth gap' from McKinsey & Company.

Exactly 12 months ago, we opened up access to our then-$57M real estate (all self-funded), hoping to be a beacon of hope and contribute in our own way.

Our overall mission was—and is—to create 100,000 millionaires of color by 2030, with a 36-month target to reach $100M in assets under management (AUM).

Instead, we f*^%#% crushed that, adding $478M to our real estate pipeline, acquired 1500+ luxury apartments ($211M+ AUM), and set a record as the fastest real estate company to sell $1M via Reg CF. (A record we've since broken on this page.)

More importantly...

NYCE brought together/created thousands of first-time BIPOC investors during a pandemic. 🙏

They're even calling us the "Robinhood of real estate." (We won't shut down trading for you, though...)

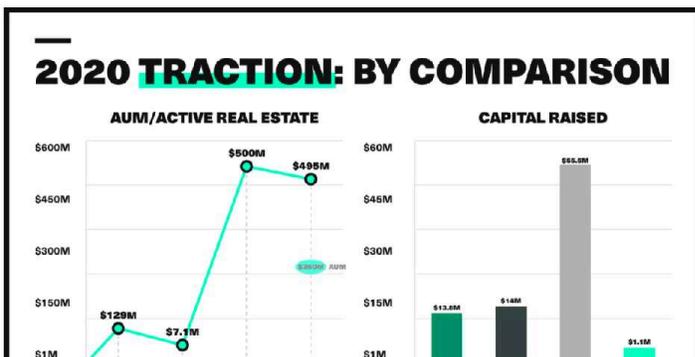

In addition, we've created and leveraged technology (via our app), opening up even further access to people of color—all colors—excluded from opportunity.

And to this day, to retain control, we haven't taken a single venture capital dollar.

(As a direct apples-to-apples comparison, DiversyFund raised capital at a $93.7M valuation with ~2860 users.)

Yet, in under 12 months, we've surpassed (and outpaced) heavily-VC backed fintechs across several growth metrics MOM and YOY, including user growth and active AUM.

In 2020, NYCE alone outsold several crowdfunding platforms as a whole, all the while outperforming several well-capitalized Series A (and beyond) platforms.

We ALSO completed TEMPLE I, our first NYCE community-owned project. ¹⁰⁰

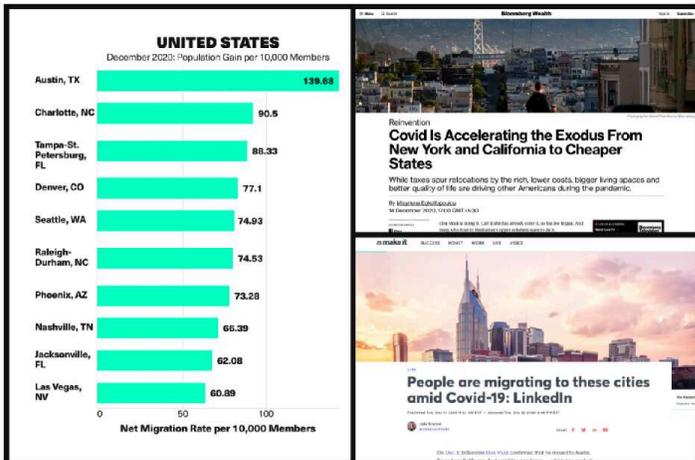

This is our Hacker House in the mini-Silicon Valley-style district we're building inside Temple University's campus in Philadelphia. (See attached deck. 🔥)

Peep the walkthrough here. 😊

So what's next?!

Well, we pretty much smashed every single projection we set. Now, any intelligent business must adapt to the conditions of the marketplace.

With Metro flight, we've expanded our growth focus to larger apartment complexes in booming Sun Belt markets—i.e. where people are moving to—picking up 1500+ apartments in Jacksonville, Austin TX, San Antonio, and a high rise in Virginia Beach.

Here are the next projects we're building...

And some existing ones we bought.

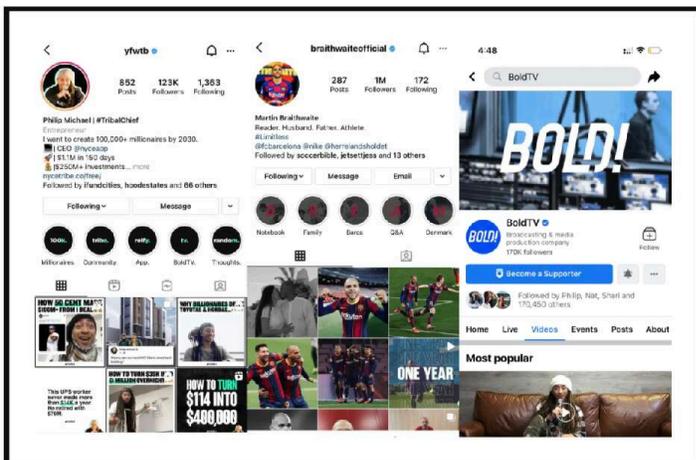

Note: NYCE holds a controlling stake in these projects alongside joint venture partner LYND.

Our goal is to create 100,000 NEW investors in 2021 (not guaranteed).

With prior Reg CF rulings, we were capped at $1.07M, limiting us to “just” 2100+ investors. This year we intend to go significantly higher, per the SEC. AND this time, we’re not starting from scratch.*

The limit for the raise is currently set at $535K, but we intend to raise it up to $5M upon getting audited financial statements and filing a Form C/A.*

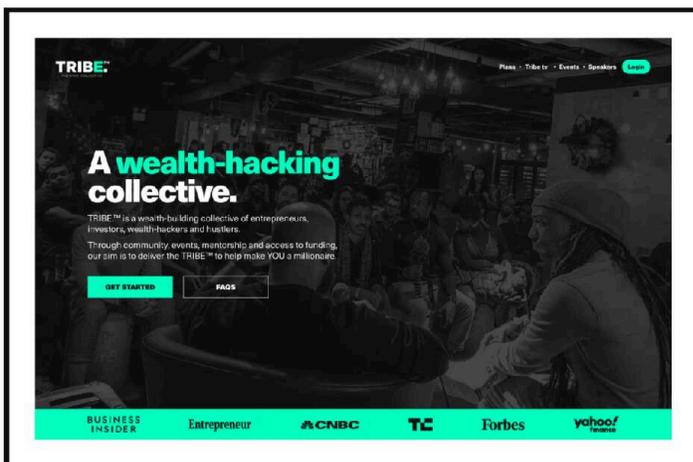

Oh, by the way, we kinda blew up on social...

What kicked everything off was one video I did 12 months ago. From there, we've built a dedicated following of 120K people on Instagram alone.

Martin also cleared 1M in followers. (I guess being teammates with Messi and Shakira's husband doesn't hurt...)

Which we now leveraged into an exclusive wealth-building community called the TRIBE™, our own personal hang-out spot for our investors, followers, and fellow wealth-hackers.

There's an exclusive investor-only group where you can always get in touch with the NYCE team. (And YES, Philip and Martin are active in there, too.)

Anyway, back to the INVESTMENT!

We're doing a limited round this time to kick off an EPIC 2021 and continue to spread the love. THIS time around, we'll open up at an even lower minimum investment amount ($100) than last so more people can join.

Again, every decision we make is stress-tested against a very basic question:

"Does this bring us closer to 100,000 new millionaires by 2030?"

If so, then yes, we do it.

And here we are.
