Each share of common stock currently issued, or to be issued under this offering, carries with it one vote in any election of the shareholders for any purpose.

RISK FACTORS

The SEC requires the Company to identify risks that are specific to its business and its financial condition. The Company is still subject to all the same risks that all companies in its business, and all companies in the economy, are exposed. These include risks relating to economic downturns, political and economic events, and technological developments (such as hacking and the ability to prevent hacking). Additionally, early-stage companies are inherently more risky than more developed companies. You should consider general risks as well as specific risks when deciding whether to invest.

A crowdfunding investment involves risk. You should not invest any funds in this offering unless you can afford to lose your entire investment.

In making an investment decision, investors must rely on their own examination of the issuer and the terms of the offering, including the merits and risks involved. These securities have not been recommended or approved by any federal or state securities commission or regulatory authority. Furthermore, these authorities have not passed upon the accuracy or adequacy of this document.

The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission does not pass upon the merits of any securities offered or the terms of the offering, nor does it pass upon the accuracy or completeness of any offering document or literature.

These securities are offered under an exemption from registration; however, the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission has not made an independent determination that these securities are exempt from registration.

Risks Related to the Company's Business and Industry

Crowdfunding for early-stage companies is relatively new. Crowdfunding (defined as online offerings of the securities of early-stage companies to retail investors) is a relatively new industry that has only started to develop with the SEC's adoption of Regulation A+ in June 2015 and Regulation Crowdfunding on May 16, 2016. Early-stage companies may be slow to adopt crowdfunding as a method of capital formation, which would mean fewer deals for investors to choose from and less research for us to prepare. Alternatively, investors may be slow to adopt crowdfunding as a viable investment substitute, which would mean fewer early-stage companies raising money and a smaller potential customer base. As a result, a risk exists that we acquire fewer customers or acquire customers at a slower pace than we anticipate.

As a new company we have a limited operating history. The Company was organized on August 2020. It has only recently launched its website, and has no revenues. We have a limited operating history upon which you may evaluate our business and prospects. We are in the early stages of our business and have not yet commenced full-scale operations. Accordingly, we are in the initial revenue phase, and our activities to date have involved business planning, market testing and efforts to raise startup capital. Our business and prospects must be considered in light of the risk, expense and difficulties frequently encountered by pre-revenue companies in early stages of development, particularly companies in highly competitive and evolving markets. If we are unable to effectively allocate our resources, provide our services, generate sales, or obtain and grow our customer base, our business operating results and financial condition would be adversely affected and we may be unable to execute our business plan, and our business could fail. Investors could therefore be at risk of losing their investment. If you are investing in this company, it's because you believe in the idea and the market opportunity, the quality of the team, and the direction of the business to date.

Our projections are speculative and are based upon a number of assumptions. Any projected financial results prepared by or on behalf of the Company have not been independently reviewed, analyzed, or otherwise passed upon. Such “forward-looking” statements are based on various assumptions, which assumptions may prove to be incorrect. Such assumptions include, but are not limited to (i) the future status of local and regional economies, (ii) anticipated demand for our services, (iii) anticipated costs associated with the development, marketing, sales and distribution of our services, and (iv) anticipated procurement and retention of a customer base. Accordingly, there can be no assurance that such projections, assumptions, and statements will accurately predict future events or actual performance. Any projections of cash flow should be considered speculative and are qualified in their entirety by the assumptions, information and risks disclosed herein. Investors are advised to consult with their own independent tax and business advisors concerning the validity and reasonableness of the factual, accounting and tax assumptions. No representations or warranties whatsoever are made by the Company or any other person or entity as to the future profitability of the Company or the results of making an investment in the Company. If our future projections end up being significantly different than currently projected, our business could be greatly impacted. Our business therefore may not be able to sustain itself without the projected future revenues. The business could be at risk of closing, and investors may therefore be at risk of losing their investments.

We may not effectively manage growth. The anticipated growth of the Company’s business will result in a corresponding growth in the demands on the Company’s management and its operating infrastructure and internal controls. While we are planning for managed growth, any future growth may strain resources and operational, financial, human and management information systems, which may not be adequate to support the Company’s operations and will require the Company to develop further management systems and procedures. There can be no guarantee that the Company will be able to develop such systems or procedures effectively on a timely basis. The failure to do so could have a material adverse effect upon the Company’s business, operating results and financial condition. Investors could therefore be at risk of losing their investments if growth is not managed effectively.

We expect our expenses to grow as the Company grows. Our expenses will increase as we build infrastructure to implement our business plan. For example, we may hire additional employees, expand our product offerings, and lease more space for our corporate offices. This poses a risk to the financial forecasts and current financial model of the Company.

The Company may not reach its sales goals. The Company has forecasted its capitalization requirements based on sales goals and cost containment measures; any reduction to these forecasts could make it difficult for the company to achieve its projected growth, which would affect available cash and working capital, ultimately affecting the Company’s financial condition. This could put the investor at risk of losing their investment.

We expect losses in the foreseeable future. Excluding the effect of any future non-operating gains, we expect to incur losses for the foreseeable future and, if we generate revenues, or have profits, we may not be able to sustain them. Our expenses will increase as we build an infrastructure to implement our business model. For example, we may hire additional employees, expand information technology systems, and lease space for operations. In addition, we plan to significantly increase our operating expenses to fully develop and broaden our technology and acquire customers.

Our success is dependent on our key personnel. We believe that our success will depend on the skill and expertise of our management. If they are unsuccessful in overseeing and growing our operation, our business will be at risk.

We rely on third parties to provide services essential to the success of our business. We rely on third parties to provide a variety of essential business functions for us. It is possible that some of these third parties will fail to perform their services or will perform them in an unacceptable manner. It is possible that we will experience delays, defects, errors, or other problems with their work that will materially impact our operations and we may have little or no recourse to recover damages for these losses. A disruption in these key or other operations could materially and adversely affect our business. As a result, your investment could be adversely impacted by our reliance on third parties and their performance.

We compete with other companies. A number of competitors exist in the telemedicine space. As the market grows, we anticipate more competition and price pressure on our business model which may limit our success.

The Company is vulnerable to hackers and cyberattacks. As an internet-marketed business, we may be vulnerable to hackers or cyberattacks. Further, any significant disruption in service on our website or in its computer systems could reduce the attractiveness of the company and result in a loss of business. Further, we rely on a third-party technology provider to provide some of our back-up technology. Any disruptions of services or cyber-attacks either on our technology provider or on the Company could harm our reputation and materially negatively impact our financial condition and business.

The Company may be unable to maintain, promote, and grow its brand through marketing and communications strategies. It may prove difficult for the Company to dramatically increase the number of customers that it serves or to establish itself as a well-known brand. Additionally, the product may be in a market where customers will not have brand loyalty.

Failure to obtain new customers or renew customer contracts on favorable terms could adversely affect results of operations. The Company may face pricing pressure in obtaining and retaining its customers.

The Company may face challenges maintaining, promoting, and growing its brand through marketing and communications strategies. It may prove difficult for the Company to dramatically increase the number of customers that it serves or to establish itself as a well-known brand in its competitive space. Additionally, the service may be in a market where customers will not have brand loyalty.

The Company projects aggressive growth. If these assumptions are wrong and the projections regarding market penetration are too aggressive, then the financial forecast may overstate the Company's overall viability. In addition, the forward-looking statements are only predictions. The Company has based these forward-looking statements largely on its current expectations and projections about future events and financial trends that it believes may affect its business, financial condition and results of operations. Forward-looking statements involve known and unknown risks, uncertainties and other important factors that may cause actual results, performance or achievements to be materially different from any future results, performance or achievements expressed or implied by the forward-looking statements.

Failure to adapt to technological changes may render our technology obsolete or decrease the attractiveness of our solutions to our customers. Although we believe our current technology and processes will be suitable for operations well into the foreseeable future, if new industry standards and practices emerge, or if competitors introduce new solutions embodying new services or technologies, our technology and processes may become obsolete. Our future success will depend in part on our ability to fully develop and enhance our technology, develop and potentially license new solutions and technologies that address the needs of our prospective customers; and respond to changes in industry standards and practices on a cost-effective and timely basis.

We must continue to enhance the features and functionality of our technology and service offering. The effective performance, reliability and availability of our technology and service offering are critical to our reputation and our ability to attract and retain customers. If we do not continue to make investments in product development and, as a result, or due to other reasons, fail to attract new and retain existing customers and investors, this could significantly decrease the value of our service to all customers and stakeholders. There can be no assurance that we will be successful in developing, marketing and selling our service to meet changing demands, that we will not experience difficulties that could delay or prevent the successful development, introduction, and marketing of service enhancements, or that any such service enhancements will adequately meet the demands of the marketplace and achieve market acceptance.

We may experience defects and system failures with respect to our technology, which would harm our business and reputation and expose us to potential liability. Our service is based on sophisticated software and hardware systems, and we may encounter delays when developing or implementing new technological solutions or service enhancements. Further, the technology solutions underlying our service may in the future contain undetected errors or defects when first introduced or when new versions are released. In addition, we may experience difficulties in installing or integrating our technologies on various software platforms. Defects in our technology solutions, errors or delays in development of our technology and service, or other difficulties could result in the interruption of business operations, a delay in market acceptance of our service, additional development and remediation costs, diversion of technical and other resources, or a loss of customers.

The Company's cash position is relatively weak. The Company currently has limited cash balances. The Company could be harmed if it is unable to meet its cash demands, and the Company may not be able to continue operations if they are not able to raise additional funds.

The Company may require additional financing to support working capital needs. The Company may need to explore additional financing transactions that management determines are in the best interest of the Company, including, without limitation, commercial debt transactions, private offerings of debt or equity securities, and other strategic alternatives. Such additional financing may not be available to the Company, or, if available, the Company may be unable to undertake such additional financing on terms that are advantageous to the Company. If the Company fails to raise additional capital in such an offering, or through other fund raising efforts, such a failure could have a material adverse effect on the Company, and investors in this Offering could be at greater risk of losing their investments due to the inability of the business to proceed with enough working capital to effectively run the Company.

If the Company incurs commercial debt, there may be risks associated with such borrowing. If the Company incurs commercial indebtedness, a portion of its cash flow will have to be dedicated to the payment of principal and interest on such indebtedness. Typical loan agreements also might contain restrictive covenants, which may impair the Company's operating flexibility. Such loan agreements would also provide for default under certain circumstances, such as failure to meet certain financial covenants. A default under a loan agreement could result in the loan becoming immediately due and payable and, if unpaid, a judgment in favor of such lender which would be senior to the rights of shareholders of the Company. A judgment creditor would have the right to foreclose on any of the Company's assets resulting in a material adverse effect on the Company's business, operating results or financial condition.

Management has broad discretion as to the use of proceeds. The net proceeds from this offering will be used for the purposes described under "Use of Proceeds." The Company reserves the right to use the funds obtained from this Offering and the Debt Offering for other similar purposes not presently contemplated, which it deems to be in the best interests of the Company in order to address changed circumstances or opportunities. This poses a risk to an investor should they be relying on current use of proceed forecasts for the investment as business conditions may require a change of the use of these funds.

The Company has not prepared any audited financial statements. Therefore, investors have no audited financial information regarding the Company's capitalization or assets or liabilities on which to make investment decisions. If investors feel the information provided is insufficient, then they should not invest in the Company.

Management has voting control of the Company. Management of the Company presently holds a majority of the issued and outstanding voting common stock in the Company. Due to their stock ownership and positions with the Company, the current officers will be in a position to continue to control the affairs and management of the Company after the Offering. Investors must rely entirely on our management to govern the affairs of the Company.

The Company must file a Form D for its Regulation D offering, as separate from this Offering. The SEC rules require a Form D to be filed by companies within 15 days after the first sale of securities in the offering relying on Regulation D. Failing to register with the SEC or get an exemption may lead to fines, the right of investors to get their investments back, and even criminal charges. There is a risk that a late penalty could apply should the Company be late in its filing.

The outbreak of the novel coronavirus, COVID-19, has adversely impacted global commercial activity and contributed to significant declines and volatility in financial markets. The coronavirus pandemic and government responses are creating disruption in global supply chains and adversely impacting many industries. The outbreak could have a continued material adverse impact on economic and market conditions and trigger a period of global economic slowdown. The rapid development and fluidity of this situation precludes any prediction as to the ultimate material adverse impact of the novel coronavirus. Nevertheless, the novel coronavirus presents material uncertainty and risk with respect to the Funds, their performance, and their financial results.

There may be unanticipated obstacles to the execution of the Company's business plan. The Company's business plan may change significantly. Our business plan is capital intensive. We believe that our chosen activities and strategies are achievable in light of current economic and legal conditions with the skills, background, and knowledge of our principals and advisors. Our management reserves the right to make significant modifications to its stated strategies depending on future events. Investors must be prepared for these potential modifications to stated strategies and understand the inherent risk to their investment that these modifications could pose.

Other economic and public health conditions in the markets pose risks. We are subject to risks including rising operational costs, labor costs, increased transportation costs, natural disasters, terrorist attacks, outbreaks of public health pandemics or other diseases, or any third-party conduct which could negatively impact our business. Various economic and public health conditions can have a significant negative impact on our business. Economic conditions may also be negatively impacted by terrorist attacks, wars and other conflicts or the prospect of such events. Any weakened economic and business climate, as well as consumer uncertainty created by such a climate, could harm our revenues and profitability. In addition, during times of economic difficulty, in an effort to maintain sales during such times we may need to reduce the price of our service, increase our promotional spending, or take other steps to encourage consumer purchases of our service. Those steps may lower our net revenues, if any, decrease our operating margins, increase our costs and/or lower our profitability, to the extent it is ever achieved.

Risks Related to the Securities

Risks Associated with an Investment in Securities Best efforts offering. This Offering is being made on a “best efforts” basis. As subscriptions are accepted (and any required rescission periods expire), subscriptions are irrevocable and subscribers will not have the opportunity to have their funds returned notwithstanding any future lack of success in recruiting other investors. Accordingly, initial subscribers will necessarily have a greater degree of risk. The Company has not engaged the services of an underwriter with respect to this offering, and there is no guarantee that any number of shares of common stock are sold and proceeds will be realized by the Company.

An investment in the Company’s securities involves substantial risk. Prospective investors should consider carefully the factors referred to below as well as others associated with their investment. In addition, this offering contains forward-looking statements regarding future events and the future financial performance of the Company that involve significant risks and uncertainties. Investors are cautioned that such statements are predictions and beliefs of the Company, and the Company’s actual results may differ materially from those discussed herein. The discussion below includes some of the material risk factors that could cause future results to differ from those described or implied in the forward-looking statements and other information appearing elsewhere herein.

The Offering price is arbitrary. The price of the Shares offered has been arbitrarily established by the Company, without considering such matters as the state of the Company’s business development and the general condition of the industry in which it operates. The price of the shares bears little relationship to the assets, net worth, or any other objective criteria of value applicable to the Company.

Shares are not guaranteed and could become worthless. The shares to be issued under this offering are not guaranteed or insured by any government agency or by any private party. The amount of earnings is not guaranteed and can vary with market conditions. The return of all or any portion of capital invested in the shares is not guaranteed, and the shares could become worthless.

Future capital needs; Dilution. The Company believes that the net proceeds of the offering will be sufficient to fund the implementation of the Company’s business plan, operations and growth for the foreseeable future, assuming that it sells all shares offered hereby and that the revenue forecasts for the first 12 months are substantially achieved. Nevertheless, in the event that additional capital is required, no assurance can be given that additional financing will be available at all or on terms favorable to the Company. If adequate funds were not available to satisfy either short or long-term capital requirements, the Company may be unable to continue in business, with a resulting loss of all or part of investments made by the Company’s investors. Moreover, if additional equity securities are issued in connection with future financings, the ownership percentages of then shareholders could be diluted. Dilution of ownership percentages may also occur as a result of equity securities issued pursuant to possible sales or grants to existing shareholders, officers, managers, consultants, advisors, and/or employees.

We are relying on certain exemptions from registration. The shares are being offered for sale in reliance upon certain exemptions from the registration requirements of the Securities Act and applicable state securities laws. If the sale of the shares were to fail to qualify for these exemptions, purchasers may seek rescission of their purchases of the shares. If a number of purchasers were to obtain rescission, the Company would face significant financial demands, which could adversely affect the Company as a whole, as well as any non-rescinding purchasers.

The Shares are restricted securities and a market for such securities may never develop. Investors should be aware of the potentially long-term nature of their investment. Each purchaser of shares will be required to represent that it is purchasing such securities for its own account for investment purposes and not with a view to resale or distribution. Purchasers may be required to bear the economic risks of the investment for an indefinite period of time. The Company has neither registered the shares, nor any other securities under the Securities Act. Consequently, shareholders may not be able to sell or transfer their securities under applicable federal and state securities laws. Moreover, there is no public market for the Company's securities, such a market is not likely to develop prior to a registration undertaken by the Company for the public offering of its securities for its own account or the account of others, and there can be no assurance that the Company will ever have such a public offering of its securities. Ultimately, each investor's risk with respect to this Offering includes the potential for a complete loss of his or her investment.

The Common Stock will not be freely tradable until one year from the initial purchase date. Although they may be tradable under federal securities law, state securities regulations may apply and each Purchaser should consult with his or her attorney. You should be aware of the long-term nature of this investment. There is not now, and there may not be, a public market for the common stock. Because the Common Stock has not been registered under the 1933 Act or under the securities laws of any state or non-United States jurisdiction, the Common Stock has transfer restrictions under Rule 501 of Regulation CF. It is not currently contemplated that registration under the 1933 Act or other securities laws will be affected. Limitations on the transfer of the Common Stock may also adversely affect the price that you might be able to obtain for them in a private sale. Purchasers should be aware of the long-term nature of their investment in the Company. Each Purchaser in this Offering will be required to represent that it is purchasing the Securities for its own account, for investment purposes, and not with a view to resale or distribute thereof.

We may be required to register under the Securities Exchange Act. The Company will be required to conform to the rules and regulations promulgated under the various federal and state securities laws applicable to the conduct of its business. Management does not believe that the Company's activities, as presently contemplated, will require registration or qualification of the Company with any federal or state agency.

Although the Company does not intend to be required to register its securities under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended, it is possible that the Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC") may require the Company to so register. For example, under Section 12(g)(1) of the Securities Exchange Act (as amended by the JOBS Act of 2012), private companies with over 2,000 shareholders and over $10,000,000 in assets, may be required to register with the SEC within 120 days after their fiscal year end. Such registration would increase the operational expenses of the Company and would restrict its activities, thereby possibly having an adverse effect on its business.

The Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002 could, should the Company take such action, make the Company's entrance into the public market difficult and expensive. In the wake of well-publicized corporate scandals associated with Enron and WorldCom involving management self-dealing and accounting fraud, in July 2002, President Bush signed into law the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002. The Sarbanes-Oxley Act—the most far reaching legislation affecting the federal securities laws since they were created in the 1930's—impacts everything from the role of auditors to public reporting of stock trades by management, from committee independence to reporting of off-balance sheet transactions, and from officer loans to employee whistle-blowing.

Public and registered companies are facing dramatic changes in disclosure and corporate governance requirements under the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, and under new and proposed rules from the SEC, NASDAQ and the NYSE. While these new rules and regulations do not generally cover private companies, their influence on private companies is being felt in the following ways:

- A private company will become subject to the Sarbanes-Oxley Act upon filing a registration statement with the SEC in anticipation of an IPO.
- The Sarbanes-Oxley Act may result in increased scrutiny of a private company being considered for acquisition by a public company.

- In order to conduct an IPO, a private company would need to evaluate its organization against the requirements of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act and develop a compliance program.

- Full compliance with the Sarbanes-Oxley Act – which can be time-consuming and expensive – can significantly slow the efforts of private companies such as the Company that may seek to enter the public markets.

You may have limited rights. The Company may not have yet authorized preferred stock, and there is no way to know what voting rights those securities will have in the future. In addition, as an investor in the Regulation CF offering, you will be considered a Non-Major Investor (as defined below) under the terms of the notes offered, and therefore, you have more limited information rights.

BUSINESS

History and Description of the Business

Kiddie, Inc. is a privately-held, startup company, incorporated in the State of Florida on August 6, 2020, that is entering into the business of operating an online telemedicine service for pediatric healthcare. As an adjunct this service, it will also arrange through third party providers for the ordering, fulfillment and management of the monthly supply, of prescription items for its subscribers. It plans to also provide an online platform for the sale of various wellness and personal care products.

Business Plan

Our Mission

To be an end-to-end service provider offering a medical online platform that helps parents resolve the healthcare issues of their children, easily, quickly and economically from the privacy and comfort of their home. No need to drive to, and wait in, a physician's office, or even go to, or wait, at a pharmacy for your child's prescriptions.

What We Will Do

Over time, the Company will integrate a new, cutting-edge proprietary telemedicine-physicians network, expandable to over 50-states, with a retail online pharmacy, or ePharmacy, to offer wellness products and services to parents for their children.

Our proprietary system will be fully Internet secure and provide complete privacy of the health care and personal information of our patients and families, meeting or surpassing federal or state healthcare regulations.

Our system, usable by computer or smartphone, will provide real time online connections between patients and medical providers (contracted in advance). Our medical providers will determine any prescriptions needed, which, based on the parents' location and agreement may be rapidly fulfilled by us, including automated repetitive refills. So, our patients can have the option of getting the added benefit on not having to go to, or wait at, a pharmacy for their prescriptions. All for a "cost per visit" comparable to existing medical service charges.

Additional Website Features

Besides being able to access quick and convenient child healthcare, our website will offer:

- online past order information,
- one-click registered customer reordering or ordering of new items, and
- through third-party strategic partners, accessibility to a broad range of information on health concerns, general healthcare and nutrition, among other topics of family health.

Our strategic intent is to be a one-stop shop for child healthcare needs, including wellness products and information on health-related issues.

Geographic Markets – Initial Rollout

For calendar 2021, the Company plans to launch its services to customers in the State of Florida, and limit them to Florida initially in order to fine tune its processes. Approximately 6 months after launch, the Company will begin adding States with major metropolitan markets, with the intent to add three to four States to our service area every 3 to 4 months starting on the East Coast and progressing into the Midwest, and rolling toward the West Coast.

How We Will Do It

Essentially, the Company is combining a telemedicine practice with an ePharmacy that offers a broad range of services and wellness products. The Pediatric Healthcare Market in the U.S., has been estimated to be worth $38.9 Billion in annual sales in 2019, with a compound annual growth rate (“CAGR”) of 3.7%. The separate Pediatric Prescription Market in the U.S., as part of the $333 Billion in annual sales U.S. Prescription Industry (as measured in 2017), was estimated to be valued at $45.8 Billion in 2017, and has been continuously growing at a CAGR of 8.9%¹.

Nationwide, there is a growing number of medical providers adept at using telemedicine techniques who are receptive to working with service providers such as ourselves. We will have an in-house professional marketing team who will recruit and contract them to provide services on a fixed fee schedule.

Prescriptions that we fill for our customers will be issued by a State of Florida licensed pharmacist, prepared and packaged under appropriate, quality control conditions as required by State and Federal law. Outbound deliveries will be via one of several major services including USPS, UPS or FedEx. Standard shipping will be included in our service fees but expedited delivery will be an additional expense for the customer.

All customer service, products and sales & marketing will be performed in-house, with fulfillment of non-medicinal products packaged and drop shipped for us by outside providers.

Over time, as the Company expands its distribution footprint, we will add additional pharmacy capacity, internal staff, technological service scaling and fulfillment centers.

Our Overall Market

In 2020, the number of children under age 18 in the United States is estimated to be 74 million. The number of children in the country is projected to increase to over 78 million by 2050².

Telemedicine Market Overview

The worldwide explosive growth in the use of smartphones and internet use, represent two of the major driving factors behind the rapid growth of the telemedicine market. The internet and smartphones allow people residing in rural and remote areas to have access to online healthcare and doctor consultation apps that previously were either unavailable or difficult to obtain. Lack of time availability, and the fact that approximately 70% of primary health care issues can be solve without the physical presence of the patient with the doctor, provide key factors that are changing the mindset of patients toward the use of mobile apps for their healthcare.

In 2017, the telemedicine market was valued at $21.5 billion worldwide and is projected to reach $48.8 billion by 2023, progressing at a CAGR of 14.8% during the forecast period of 2018–2023.

Overall, the consumer portion of the telemedicine market is likely to witness faster growth during this forecast period, due to patient benefits, including remote monitoring of health conditions and improved access to healthcare professionals³. Telemedicine solutions for individual consumers hold great opportunity as they provide effective, rapid, and cost-effective care delivery to patients. Recent events (e.g., coronavirus) have only escalated its growth.

The Impact of Recent Events (COVID-19 Crisis) on the Shift to Telemedicine

According to CNBC.Com⁴: “The adoption of telemedicine shifted into hyper-drive over the past month, with virtual health-care interactions on pace to top 1 billion by year’s end, according to analysts at Forrester Research. March 2020 telehealth visits surged 50% amid the coronavirus pandemic, according to research from Frost and Sullivan consultants. Analysts now expect general medical care visits to top 200 million this year, up sharply from their original expectation of 36 million visits for all of 2020.

Barriers to consumer use of telemedicine collapsed dramatically last month after the government declared a national emergency due to COVID-19. The government also strongly urged doctors and patients to avoid in-person visits and instead use telemedicine visits to help prevent the spread of the virus. One result of the crisis, is that health insurers are now making a push for patients to use telemedicine platforms wherever possible.

Today, as a result of the coronavirus crisis, telemedicine is increasingly on the same footing as in-office visits. Moreover, as it relates to the COVID-19 crisis, the WHO mentioned telemedicine as one of the essential services in its policy of how to respond to it.

Competitive Landscape

In 2017, the Pediatric Healthcare Market's telemedicine segment in the U.S. was estimated to be worth $1.37 Billion. Overall, the total U.S. Telemedicine Market (children and adults) by 2019 was valued at $38.9 Billion, with all segments growing rapidly such that the Pediatric Healthcare Market is projected to reach $4.6 Billion by 2025.

At the end of 2020, the Pediatric Healthcare Market telemedicine segment continues to grow rapidly driven by multiple factors including the impact of the Covid pandemic which has made parents wary of travel to medical offices in general. Although this market is sizable and growing, there isn't a dominant national competitor, but rather many smaller, regional competitors offering similar, but not identical services to Kiddie, Inc. Pricing is primarily per visit, with some requiring an upfront enrollment fee. Service offerings among the competitors are essentially comparable. Some physician groups with pediatric services are also offering telemedicine delivery of services, but such offerings usually are limited to the group's geographic footprint, and are at a higher price point than strict telemedicine service companies. Few competitors in the telemedicine space offer healthcare products on an e-commerce basis, or provide for any pharmacy prescription fulfillment services.

Unless the Company raises at least the Minimum Offering Amount of $25,000 under the Combined Offerings (the "Closing Amount") by May 7, 2021, no Securities will be sold in this Offering, investment commitments will be cancelled, and committed funds will be returned.

Investors who completed the subscription process by May 7, 2021 will be permitted to increase their subscription amount at any time on or before May 7, 2021. For the avoidance of doubt, no initial subscriptions from new investors will be accepted after May 7, 2021.

If the Company reaches its Closing Amount prior to May 7, 2021, the Company may conduct the first of multiple closings, provided that the Offering has been posted for 21 days and that investors who have committed funds will be provided notice five business days prior to the close. The minimum amount of Securities that can be purchased is $100.00 per Purchaser (which may be waived by the Company, in its sole and absolute discretion). The offer made hereby is subject to modification, prior sale and withdrawal at any time.

Our Maximum Offering Amount under Regulation Crowdfunding is $1,070,000. Additionally, we have set a minimum Offering Amount of $25,000 between our Combined Offerings under Regulation Crowdfunding and Regulation D, which must be met before the Company can withdraw funds.

The Securities

Per the Company's Articles of Incorporation as filed in Florida on August 6, 2020, the Company is authorized to issue up to 100,000,000 shares of capital stock, no par value. The capital stock may be either common stock or preferred stock. As of the date of this offering, only shares of common stock have been issued, and no shares of preferred stock have been designated or issued, although the Company reserves the right to do so in the future.

Each share of common stock currently issued, or to be issued under this offering, carries with it one vote in any election of the shareholders for any purpose.

Voting and Control

Voting Rights. Each share of common stock subscribed to under this offering, bears one vote in an election of the shareholders for any purpose.

Voting Proxy. Each subscriber for the shares offered herein shall appoint the Chief Executive Officer of the Company (the "CEO"), or his or her successor, as said subscriber's true and lawful proxy and attorney, with the power to act alone and with full power of substitution, to, consistent with this instrument and on behalf of the Subscriber, (i) vote all Securities, (ii) give and receive notices and communications, (iii) execute any instrument or document that the CEO determines is necessary or appropriate in the exercise of its authority under this instrument, and (iv) take all actions necessary or appropriate in the judgment of the CEO for the accomplishment of the foregoing. The proxy and power granted by the Subscriber pursuant to this Section are coupled with an interest. Such proxy and power will be irrevocable. The proxy and power, so long as the subscriber is an individual, will survive the death, incompetency and disability of the subscriber and, so long as the subscriber is an entity, will survive the merger or reorganization of the subscriber or any other entity holding the Securities. However, the Proxy will terminate upon the closing of a firm-commitment underwritten public offering pursuant to an effective registration statement under the Securities Act of 1933 covering the offer and sale of Common Stock or the effectiveness of a registration statement under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 covering the Common Stock.

Minority Holder Limitation on Rights

As a subscriber under this Offering, you will be a "minority holder." As a minority holder of Common Stock of the Company, an investor will have limited rights in regards to the corporate actions of the Company, including any additional issuances of securities, company repurchases of securities, a sale of the company or its significant assets, or company transactions with related parties. Further, investors in this offering may have rights less than those of other investors (for example, should the Company in the future issue preferred stock, of which it currently has issued none, which preferred stock may bear current preferences and rights), and will have limited influence on the corporate actions of the Company.

The right to demand current distributions from any operating business is limited. A majority owner, if she/he is committed to avoiding any distributions to a minority owner, can usually avoid making any distributions of profits. By establishing generous reserves for future expenses, paying a salary to one's self or relatives in a high amount, pre-paying expenses, investing in new business or new equipment, leasing cars, etc., a majority owner can spend enough that there are rarely any profits to be distributed. So long as the expenses are not grossly unreasonable, the investor, probably, won't be able to force the company to allow you to share in any of the current income of that company.

No right to participate in any management decisions of the company. The majority owner may make a decision with which an investor disagrees and puts your investment at risk. The investor can try to convince the majority owner that it is the wrong decision, but the majority owner has no obligation to the minority holder to change its position.

The investor has limited rights, if any, to have your interest bought out. You may want to cash out your interest and do other things with the money. State law may give you the right to force the company to buy you out, but these rights are limited.

Sale of the Business.

While the investor would be entitled to a share of any profits on sale of the entire business, a sale can be structured in a way to avoid any payout to minority owners, such as a sale of assets over time with the proceeds reinvested in another business.

Dilution

Investors should understand the potential for dilution. The investor's stake in a Company could be diluted due to the Company issuing additional shares. In other words, when the Company issues more shares, the percentage of the Company that you own will go down, even though the value of the company may go up. You will own a smaller piece of a larger company. This increase in number of shares outstanding could result from a stock offering (such as an initial public offering, another crowdfunding round, a venture capital round, angel investment), employees exercising stock options, or by conversion of certain instruments (e.g., convertible bonds, preferred shares or warrants) into stock.

If the Company decides to issue more shares, an investor could experience value dilution, with each share being worth less than before, and control dilution, with the total percentage an investor owns being less than before. There may also be earnings dilution, with a reduction in the amount earned per share (though this typically occurs only if the company offers dividends, and most early-stage companies are unlikely to offer dividends, preferring to invest any earnings into the company).

If you are making an investment expecting to own a certain percentage of the Company or expecting each share to hold a certain amount of value, it's important to realize how the value of those shares can decrease by actions taken by the Company. Dilution can make drastic changes to the value of each share, ownership percentage, voting control, and earnings per share.

Restrictions on Transfer

Any Securities sold pursuant to Regulation CF being offered may not be transferred by any Purchaser of such Securities during the one-year holding period beginning when the Securities were issued, unless such Securities are transferred: 1) to the Company, 2) to an accredited investor, as defined by Rule 501(a) of Regulation D promulgated under the 1933 Act, 3) as part of an IPO or 4) to a member of the family of the Purchaser or the equivalent, to a trust controlled by the Purchaser, to a trust created for the benefit of a member of the family of the Purchaser or the equivalent, or in connection with the death or divorce of the Purchaser or other similar circumstances. "Member of the family or the equivalent" as used herein means a child, stepchild, grandchild, parent, stepparent, grandparent, spouse or spousal equivalent, sibling, mother, father, daughter, son, sister, brother-in-law, and includes adoptive relationships. Remember that although you may legally be able to transfer the Securities, you may not be able to find another party willing to purchase them.

In addition to the foregoing restrictions, prior to making any transfer of the Securities or any Securities into which they are convertible, such transferring Purchaser must either make such transfer pursuant to an effective registration statement filed with the SEC or provide the Company with an opinion of counsel stating that a registration statement is not necessary to effect such transfer.

Other Material Terms

The Company does not have the right to repurchase the Securities. The Securities do not have a stated return or liquidation preference.

Valuation

Before making an investment decision, you should carefully consider this valuation and the factors used to reach such valuation. Such valuation may not be accurate, and you are encouraged to determine your own independent value of the Company prior to investing.

There are several ways to value a company. None of them is perfect and all of them involve a certain amount of guesswork. The same method can produce a different valuation if used by a different person.

Liquidation Value - The amount for which the assets of the Company can be sold, minus the liabilities owed, for example, the assets of a retail business include its inventory, fixtures and equipment; its liabilities include the cost of rent, etc. However, Liquidation Value does not reflect the potential value of a business, e.g., the value of the customer base. The value for most startups lies in their potential, as many early-stage companies do not have many assets.

Book Value - This is based on analysis of the Company's financial statements, usually looking at the Company's balance sheet as prepared by its accountants. However, the balance sheet only looks at the cost of assets (i.e., what was paid for the asset), and does not consider whether the asset has increased in value over time. In addition, some intangible assets, such as trademarks, or trade names, may be very valuable but may not be represented at their market value on the balance sheet.

Earnings Approach - This is based on what the investor will pay (the present value) for what the investor expects to obtain in the future (the future return), taking into account inflation, the lost opportunity to participate in other investments, and the risk of not receiving the return. However, predictions of the future are uncertain and valuation of future returns is speculative.

Different methods of valuation produce a different answer as to what your investment is worth. For example, liquidation value and book value may produce a lower valuation than the earnings approach, which may be based on assumptions about the future.

Future investors may value the Company differently, as the state of the business changes over time. Or, they may use a different valuation method, or different assumptions about the Company's business and its market. Such changes in valuation over time may mean that the value assigned to your investment changes and may cause the value of the Company to decrease.

Pre-Money Valuation

The Company's Board of Directors has determined that a reasonable "Pre-Money Valuation" for the Company (that is, a value before funding to execute the Company's business plan is raised) is approximately $250,000, given the startup investments already made in the Company, its ongoing development, and the rapidly growing healthcare telemedicine sector in which it will plans to participate.

The basis for the Company's value comes from consideration of the following:

- The large, rapidly growing market for telemedicine, valued at $10 Billion in 2020 and projected to reach $34 Billion by 2025, and the overall sizable pediatric healthcare service market estimated at $38.9 Billion in 2019 with a rapidly growing telemedicine segment valued at $1.37 Billion for 2020.
- The marketing, technical and general management experience of management.

The Company's management took these factors into account and balanced them against the fact that the Company is an early-stage company. The Company set its valuation internally, without a formal-third party independent valuation.

Over time, as additional investment is made in the Company and the development of its application, the current valuation of the Company will be adjusted accordingly.

TAX MATTERS

Each prospective purchaser should consult with his own tax advisor as to the particular consequences of the purchase, ownership and sale of the securities, as well as possible changes in the tax laws.

FUNDME.COM INVESTMENT PROCESS

For information on the FundMe.Com investment process, see Exhibit E, “Subscription Agreement Instructions – Fundme.Com.

How does investing work?

When you complete your investment on FundMe.Com, your money will be transferred to an escrow account where an independent escrow agent will watch over your investment until it is accepted by the Company. Once the Company accepts your investment, and certain regulatory procedures are completed, your money will be transferred from the escrow account to the Company in exchange for your Securities. At that point, you will be an investor in the Company.

Regulation CF rules regarding the investment process:

- Investors may cancel an investment commitment until 48 hours prior to the deadline identified in the issuer’s Offering materials;
- The intermediary, FundMe.Com, Inc. will notify investors when the Minimum and Maximum Offering Amounts have been met;
- The Company is making concurrent offerings under both Regulation CF and Regulation D and unless the Company raises at least the target amount under the Regulation CF Offering and the closing amount under both offerings, it will not close this Offering;
- If the Company reaches a target offering amount and the closing amount prior to the deadline identified in its offering materials, it may close the Offering early if it provides notice about the new Offering deadline at least five business days prior to such new Offering deadline;
- If there is a material change and an investor does not reconfirm his or her investment commitment, the investor’s investment commitment will be cancelled and the committed funds will be returned;
- If the Company does not reach both the target offering amount and the closing offering amount prior to the deadline identified in its offering materials, no Securities will be sold in the Offering, investment commitments will be cancelled and committed funds will be returned; and
- If an investor does not cancel an investment commitment before the 48-hour period prior to the Offering deadline, the funds will be released to the Company upon closing of the Offering and the investor will receive Securities in exchange for his or her investment.

What will I need to complete my investment?

To make an investment you will need the following information readily available:

1. Personal information such as your current address and phone number
2. Social Security Number or government-issued identification
3. ABA bank routing number and checking account number
4. Employment information
5. Net worth and income information

How much can I invest?

An investor is limited in the amount that he or she may invest in a Regulation Crowdfunding Offering during any 12- month period:

- If either the annual income or the net worth of the investor is less than $107,000, the investor is limited to the greater of $2,000 or 5% of the lesser of his or her annual income or net worth.
- If the annual income and net worth of the investor are both equal to or greater than $107,000, the investor is limited to 10% of the lesser of his or her annual income or net worth, to a maximum of $107,000. Separately, the Company has set a minimum investment amount.

How can I (or the Company) cancel my investment?

For Offerings made under Regulation Crowdfunding, you may cancel your investment at any time up to 48 hours before a closing occurs or an earlier date set by the Company. You will be sent a reminder notification approximately five days before the closing or set date giving you an opportunity to cancel your investment if you had not already done so. Once a closing occurs, and if you have not cancelled your investment, you will receive an email notifying you that your Securities have been issued.

After InvestmentWhat is my ongoing relationship with the Company?

You are an investor in the Company, you do own securities after all! But more importantly, companies that have raised money via Regulation Crowdfunding must file information with the SEC and post it on their website on an annual basis. Receiving regular company updates is important to keep investors educated and informed about the progress of the Company and their investments. This annual report includes information similar to the Company's initial Form C filing and key information that a company will want to share with its investors to foster a dynamic and healthy relationship.

In certain circumstances a company may terminate its ongoing reporting requirements if:

- (1) the Company is required to file reports under Section 13(a) or Section 15(d) of the Exchange Act;
- (2) the Company has filed at least three annual reports pursuant to Regulation CF and has total assets that do not exceed $10,000,000;
- (3) the Company has filed at least one annual report pursuant to Regulation CF and has fewer than 300 holders of record;
- (4) the Company or another party repurchases all of the Securities issued in reliance on Section 4(a)(6) of the 1933 Act, including any payment in full of debt securities or any complete redemption of redeemable securities; or
- (5) the Company liquidates or dissolves its business in accordance with state law.

However, regardless of whether a company has terminated its ongoing reporting requirements per SEC rules, FundMe.Com works with all companies on its platform to ensure that investors are provided quarterly updates. These quarterly reports will include information such as: (i) quarterly net sales, (ii) quarterly change in cash and cash on hand, (iii) material updates on the business, (iv) fundraising updates (any plans for next round, current round status, etc.), and (v) any notable press and news.

How do I keep track of this investment?

You can return to FundMe.Com at any time to view your portfolio of investment and obtain a summary statement. In addition to monthly account statements, you may also receive periodic updates from the Company about its business.

Can I get rid of my Securities after buying them?

Securities purchased through a Regulation Crowdfunding Offering are not freely transferable for one year after the date of purchase, except in the case where they are transferred:

1. To the Company that sold the Securities
2. To an accredited investor
3. As part of an Offering registered with the SEC (e.g., IPO)
4. To a member of the family of the purchaser or the equivalent, to a trust controlled by the purchaser, to a trust created for the benefit of a member of the family of the purchaser, or in connection with the death or divorce of the purchaser

Regardless, after the one year holding period has expired, you should not plan on being able to readily transfer and/or sell your security. Currently, there is no market or liquidity for these Securities and the Company does not have any plans to list these Securities on an exchange or other secondary market. At some point the Company may choose to do so, but until then you should plan to hold your investment for a significant period of time before a "liquidation event" occurs.
