Accelerate3D is a 3D printing service provider for large size parts. Our focus is on dramatically reducing both the cost and time of printing large size parts by combining our own high speed 3D printers with high levels of process automation to make things as low friction as possible for customers. We plan to further reduce the high shipping costs of large size parts by using a novel business model of building regional micro-factories to reduce the distance between where parts are printed and our customers.
