

Water disclosure

Water disclosure is a key element of a company's ESG strategy. It is a process of identifying, measuring, and reporting on water-related risks and opportunities. This process is essential for companies to understand their water footprint, assess their water risks, and communicate their water stewardship to stakeholders.

Happy to announce my next film. In 2009 I was happy to write and direct "Nicky Newark". A story about a parole officer who wanted to be an actor. Back then the film was simply funny. Now it's timely. I'm looking forward to re-entering the world of Nicky Newark with the next film I'll be directing called "The Tale of Nicky Newark". We made the first movie for $2,000. This go around we're seeking out an actual budget through equity crowdfunding (money is made while the movie makes its profits). Right now we are taking "reservations" as there needs to be SEC legal submission once we hit 50k in those reservations (see below).

Our plan. Why the film is important-especially today. It's all in the pitch video on the wefunder site at the link below.

Any questions you have please shoot me over a IM or call and I'm happy to chat.
