Jack Booty

Co-Founder, CEO at Bula Technologies Inc.
United States

Summary

Jack Booty started his first company in high school, the QB Consulting Co., where he scouted and identified top national football talent. After graduating, Jack was scouted himself and started working with Doug Pederson as the Offensive Coordinator for his very own high school, Calvary Baptist Academy.

After two years of coaching, Jack wanted to get back to his business roots and started his second company Kettle Kingdom, a souvenir store at Disney World. There he ran operations, growing the store from one retail location to ten, proliferated the product offerings, and launched its commerce website. Under Jack's stewardship, Kettle Kingdom grew into a multi-million dollar business in just a few years. Kettle Kingdom is still the most successful independently operated retail store within the Disney Kingdom.

Today, Jack is focused on launching his new venture, Bula, a social challenge app which is expected to be the next generation of social.
