Summary

Henry builds teams for seed stage and series A startups, principally on behalf of investors, and helps companies achieve growth goals (subsequent rounds or acquisition). Henry spent 5 months as Head of Mergers and Acquisitions for Heartland Payment Systems.

Henry's career has centered on business/sales development in the technology and media sectors.

Henry has specialized in building sales teams, or as an entrepreneur building start up companies from zero to profitability, or capital raise events (Series A or buyout).

Henry has worked with, advised and invested in a number of tech start-ups, including BentoBox, 1Build, Proper.Ai, Infinitime, Avvir, Blind Barber, The Wing, PlatelQ, Dash, UrbanStems, Cameo, Partender, Every Screen Media and Confirmed. His portfolio has four acquisitions and over a dozen successfully completed capital events.

Henry was briefly the Head of Mergers and Acquisitions for Heartland Payment Systems, purchasing two early stage companies and creatively financing a third company.

Henry was previously Vice President of Sales at Singleplatform, which provides restaurants with a single online "interface" from which they manage their digital menus throughout the web. He built and led the sales force during the company's first two rounds of financing. Single Platform was sold to Constant Contact for $100 million.

Before joining Single Platform, Henry founded Gin Lane Media, an award-winning digital marketing agency based in downtown NYC whose clients include Stella McCartney, adidas and Rocawear.

Prior to Gin Lane Media, Henry was a top performing team leader and sales person at Heartland Payment Systems (pre-IPO). Henry earned multiple performance awards during his tenure at Heartland, including earning their RM Hall Of Fame award.

In his spare time Henry has worked on a number of charity and development projects in third world countries, working for the office of the President of the Dominican Republic, founding a charity organization in South Africa, and assisting with aid initiatives in Haiti and Uganda.

Tagpop -- now GOODFAIR

Co Founder

June 2016 - March 2018 (1 year 10 months)

New York

Tagpop, now GOODFAIR, is a marketplace network to combat the waste crisis, by selling surplus clothing and incentivizing consumers to donate to charity. The consumer purchases "mystery" items by category, which allows the company to match goods to the consumer at a reduced cost to both parties.

We have game-ified fashion, starting with Vintage tees; for $5 bucks, you have the chance to get varying degrees of quality based on how much you shop AND donate to charities (you can also pay a bit more to guarantee a higher quality shirt).

Launching in January of 2017, Tagpop's app/chat bot, will tell you where the closest charity accepting donations is that you can drop off to, and by winter of 2017, will help you schedule pick up of your goods.

When you donate your clothes to charity using the app, you receive two things:

1. A credit for 1 mystery tee for the Tagpop site which you can only give to friends,
2. An improved rating which increases your chances of getting premium items when you purchase.

At scale this marketplace network can then offer other liquidators, raggers, recyclers, jobbers, brokers, a place to sell goods directly to consumer; bringing an entirely analog $36 billion industry digital.

Partender - Food & Bar Inventory. In 15 mins.

Interim CRO

November 2014 - January 2015 (3 months)

Greater New York City Area

Partender is a business tool that reduces the time it takes owners & managers to do bar inventory from a frustrating 6-24 hours to 15 minutes. We do this by digitizing the crazy, archaic paper-pen-clipboard process into a few taps and swipes on iOS. As a result, you can inventory as often as every day/shift to control your bar, catch and eliminate the industry-average 23% shrinkage (inventory loss due to over-pouring, theft, wastage, etc.), and put that money right back in your pocket.

On average, our 99.2%-accurate system adds $4,000 in the first week of implementation, saves $1,200-$5,000/mo thereafter, and improves bottom lines by whole percentages.

After every inventory, Partender instantly emails you your Purchase Orders in MS Excel, which you can forward to your reps and be done with inventory AND ordering in 15 mins.

Cloud-based data analytics online show you what's selling the best/worst, what your dead stock is, and what you're low on, so you never run dry and miss a sale.
