About

Larry LaMotte is not the guy who knew what he wanted to be since age 7. No, he is trained as an Architect with the heart of an entrepreneur. He built his own home and much more. He has worked since age 8: paper routes, farm work, bike taxi, singing telegrams, bouncer, waiter, carpenter, designer, consultant, mentor, facilities manager, career counselor, six-time business owner, with a couple of self-reinventions. Avid daily learner and fierce implementer of what he learns. He plans to live to 120+. ReCapturit® is the current culmination of his work.

Larry's level of enthusiasm and passion to help and mentor those around him is top notch! Larry volunteered his time on numerous occasions to travel to local military bases and connect with service members transitioning out of the military. His ability to help extract the why and what people want out of a career was phenomenal! Always a pleasure working with Larry and he is an inspiration to all.

Larry LaMotte and I connected on LinkedIn a few years ago when I was at the depth of my confusion about life and my calling in life. I have just moved to the UAE back then from Europe and was facing many challenges. I was in a difficult place, not only physically but also emotionally. Larry was and still is in the U.S. We never worked together. However, when we began our chat conversations, gradually I ...see more

I'm one of the many people that Larry helped get started on the path to a successful career change. I was New to Seattle and fresh out of an Army career, and it was Larry's coaching ability, positive outlook, and natural talents as a networker that showed me opportunities I would have missed on my own. I was impressed by Larry's immediate impact on people as a contributor during a Soldier-to-civilian ...see more
