Paige Jernigan

Angel Oak Advisory

Bentonville, Arkansas, United States

Summary

Angel Oak is an advisory service and fund-raising consultancy for startups raising angel, seed and growth capital. Paige spent over a decade at Goldman Sachs as an equity analyst covering wireless telecom service companies in New York, Toronto and London.

While taking time to raise three boys in London, she raised capital for investment funds, nonprofits, individuals, and startups around the globe. Following Brexit and 17 years in London, Paige and her family moved to New York. She splits her time between New York and Bentonville, Arkansas where she continues to raise money for various for-profit and non-profit entities.

Paige led the Democrats Abroad coalition in London for Mike Bloomberg's 2020 Presidential campaign, organizing DA chapters across the globe. She serves as a Trustee of three independent schools in the United States and London for 10+ years on their Advancement, Development, Capital Campaign and Finance committees. To help the international students at these schools, she co-founded an English literacy platform which built two English language libraries in Shanghai.

Paige received her MBA from Kellogg at Northwestern University. Additionally, after completing Kellogg's executive education program on corporate and non-profit board governance and managing family offices, she has worked with family offices in London on board structure and governance.
