Paul Szkiler

CEO at Truestone Impact Investment Management Limited
London, England, United Kingdom

Summary

Paul's career spans almost 40 years of working in the City of London, in the financial services industry. He has spent much time in the voluntary sector, including co-founding the international charity 'Children in Crisis'.

Paul and his company Truestone are well known in the social impact investment world for pioneering innovative private equity approaches, most notably in establishing a number of companies in West Africa. The companies generally have three objectives; to be profitable on a sustainable basis, to have a measurable social outcome, and to focus on mentoring.

Previously Paul established the company Truestone Asset Management Ltd, which grew as a private wealth management company, eventually being sold in 2014.

He is the founder of A Call to Business, which is an international organisation focusing on discipleship in the marketplace. Most recently in 2015 Paul has moved into the hotel industry and continues to develop themes attempting to integrate the spheres of society with an emphasis on biblical thinking.
