Herman Phillips

CEO @ Cinapse | Film & TV Production Technology | Forbes 30U30
Los Angeles, California, United States

Summary

I knew from a young age that I wanted to work in film and TV, and I've been fortunate enough to pursue that passion in a variety of roles. After founding a production company and working as a Line Producer on numerous music videos and industrial projects, I moved to Los Angeles to pursue membership in the Directors Guild of America. Since then, I've worked as a Set Production Assistant on some of the biggest TV blockbusters of our time, including The Mandalorian, The Book of Boba Fett, Euphoria, Silicon Valley, and Insecure.

During my time as a student at the University of South Carolina Honors College, I began merging my passion for film and TV production management with my love for technology. My undergraduate thesis on Hollywood industrial hierarchies of labor and production management software ultimately led to me founding Cinapse, a film and television production management software company that has been backed by top-tier investors, including Neil Patrick Harris, Y Combinator, and members of the Directors Guild of America and SAG-AFTRA.

As the CEO and Co-Founder of Cinapse, I'm proud to be at the forefront of a new era in physical production management. It's an honor to have been recognized for my contributions to the media and entertainment industries with a spot on the Forbes 30 Under 30 list in 2022. I'm excited to continue pursuing my passion for film and TV production in innovative ways, and to help shape the future craft and business of physical production with Cinapse.
