Galectin-3 is currently the subject of intensive research interest for its pivotal and causal role in numerous chronic diseases including cardiovascular, kidney, lung, and liver fibrosis, cancer progression, and longevity. Because of its broad potential applications, the device is positioned to provide a new treatment option for different inflammatory and fibrotic diseases.

The first indication ETI is targeting is Acute Kidney Injury (AKI). AKI is a sudden decrease in kidney function with or without kidney damage, occurring over a few hours or days. Annual US hospitalizations for AKI are in excess of 4,000,000 and deaths exceed 500,000. Diabetes, hypertension, and advanced age are primary risk factors for acute kidney injury. It is increasingly recognized as an in-hospital complication of sepsis, heart conditions, surgery and Covid-19. Its most severe stage requires treatment with dialysis or renal transplant therapy. Acute kidney injury is also associated with higher likelihood of long-term care, incidence of chronic kidney disease and hospital mortality, and higher long-term health care costs.
