The Importance of Bees

Bees are crucial to our ecosystem, with nearly 70% of our food directly related to their pollination. However, current farming practices such as monocultures, tilling, pesticide use, and genetically modified crops are causing bee populations to decline at an alarming rate. At LIXIR, we are dedicated to supporting bee health by using only ethically sourced honey and in the future, we plan to provide one percent of our profits to further support bee preservation efforts.

The Story Behind LIXIR

Our journey began when our founder, Collin McKenna-grandson of Sid and Jenny Craig, moved from Colorado to Hawaii at the age of 16 to study environmental sciences. During his studies, he discovered the benefits of regenerative agriculture and was inspired to start a business that would support this sustainable farming process. After graduating from the University of San Diego with a business degree and working in the beverage space for 6 years, Collin set out to create one of the first regenerative honey based alcohol companies of its kind.

LIXIR was born from the idea of creating a honey-based alcohol after Collin's friends in Hawaii and Colorado introduced him to mead, the oldest known alcohol. They spoke of the health and environmental benefits of using humanely sourced honey and how enjoyable the drink was. Realizing that mead was not widely available in Southern California, Collin decided to fill this gap in the market.

Partnering with a meadery in San Diego, Collin worked tirelessly to innovate the way mead was made. His goal was to create a low-sugar / calorie, delicious beverage that everyone could enjoy. After two years and countless renditions, LIXIR was ready to hit the shelves and launched in April 2024 in Southern California.

Environmental Benefits and Future Goals

LIXIR is committed to supporting bee health and the environment. We source our honey from a rainforest bee preserve in Brazil, the second largest rainforest after the Amazon. This rainforest provides a significant source of oxygen and life to the planet and relies on the health of these bees. With each can sold, we aim to support the farmers who work tirelessly to maintain these bee farms. By giving them a portion of our revenue, we enable them to grow their bee farms, support their families, and continue their vital work for the planet.
