We are finalizing everything to be done by Saturday morning.

But that thread is insight on how we're designing the pitch and investment rounds

Still on track to release sales for the friends and families this week?

Ok. Looking forward to it. So far it's us and Jeff's Kim's dad that are going to commit.

You did a good job with it. As for feedback I'd say you could probably reduce the amount of information even further, add more white space to each slide.

Obviously I'm not a VC or anything but I'd consider seeding this.

And from that perspective I'm really just looking for the nuts and bolts.

Kind of like Shark Tank

Why do I care?

How are you different?

What's the risk?

What are the terms?

Can I get this app in my hands?

What's the biggest challenge you think money will solve?

Those are some of the questions going through my head

HLTHi is a provider-led, cloud-native telehealth platform that connects patients to real doctors in under 15 minutes — faster than any ER or urgent

We built it to fix the broken access, trust, and cost problems that leave people waiting, guessing, or overpaying when they need medical care most.

Like this sounds a little bullshittery to me personally

Suggestion: HLTHIi is a Telehealth app that connects patients with licensed medical professionals faster and cheaper than ER and urgent care.

This is exactly the kind of feedback we needed—thank you!

We tried to convey what we are through examples on slide 1, but the fact that you're leaving that slide still wondering what we do and how to access it tells us the message isn't landing. You're absolutely right: it's not getting to the nuts

We're going to revise it based directly on your notes. Really appreciate you taking the time to dig in-this kind of clarity at this stage is invaluable.
