> Wildcards Films LLC was incorporated in September 2025 and has an extremely limited operating history upon which investors can evaluate the company's business and prospects. The company is in the early stages of its business operations with only one employee. As an early-stage film production and distribution company, we face all the risks inherent in a new business, including the uncertainty of market acceptance of our film, our ability to execute our distribution strategy, and our capacity to compete against established production companies and distributors. There is no assurance that we will be successful in completing our post-production work, securing distribution, or generating revenue from our film project. The likelihood of our success must be considered in light of the problems, expenses, difficulties, complications, and delays frequently encountered in connection with the establishment of any business, the competitive environment in which we operate, and the continued development of the independent film market.

Our future success depends heavily on the continued services and performance of our founder and the small team involved in completing and distributing our film project. With only one employee, the company has minimal organizational depth and limited ability to absorb the loss of key personnel. The loss of services of our founder or other key creative or business personnel involved in the project could have a material adverse effect on our ability to complete post-production, execute our marketing and distribution strategy, and achieve our business objectives. We do not maintain key person life insurance on any individuals associated with the company. Additionally, our ability to manage and execute our business plan depends on our capacity to attract and retain qualified personnel for specialized roles such as post-production technicians, marketing professionals, and distribution executives. There can be no assurance that we will be successful in attracting or retaining the personnel necessary to successfully complete and distribute our film.

Our business model depends on the successful completion, marketing, and distribution of a single film project. We have no established track record of producing or distributing films that have achieved commercial success or critical acclaim. The independent film industry is highly unpredictable, and the commercial performance of any film depends on numerous factors beyond our control, including audience reception, critical reviews, competition from other releases, timing of release, effectiveness of marketing campaigns, and general market conditions. Even films with significant budgets, established talent, and extensive marketing campaigns frequently fail to achieve commercial success or recoup their production and marketing costs. There is no assurance that our film will achieve theatrical distribution, secure streaming platform placement, generate festival recognition, or produce any revenue whatsoever. The failure of our film to achieve market acceptance would have a material adverse effect on our business and could result in a total loss of invested capital.

Our ability to generate revenue depends substantially on our capacity to secure distribution agreements with theatrical exhibitors, streaming platforms, international sales agents, and other distribution partners. We have no existing distribution agreements in place and no assurance that we will be able to secure favorable distribution terms, if any distribution can be secured at all. Distribution partners typically have significant negotiating leverage and may demand terms that substantially reduce our potential revenue, including high distribution fees, extensive marketing cost recoupment provisions, and long holdback periods. Major streaming platforms and theatrical distributors receive thousands of film submissions and accept only a small fraction for distribution. Additionally, distribution partners may have the right to modify release strategies, marketing approaches, or territorial plans in ways that could adversely affect the film's performance. Our dependence on these third-party relationships, over which we have limited control, creates substantial uncertainty regarding our ability to generate revenue from our film project.

The company currently has very limited cash reserves. Our ability to complete post-production work, execute our marketing and distribution strategy, and maintain operations depends entirely on the success of this offering and our ability to manage our limited financial resources effectively. If we are unable to raise sufficient capital through this offering, we may be forced to delay or abandon critical post-production work, reduce the scope of our marketing campaign, forgo festival submissions or market attendance, or curtail other essential business activities. Even if this offering is successful, there is no assurance that the funds raised will be sufficient to complete all planned activities or that our use of funds estimates will prove accurate. Cost overruns in post-production, higher-than-anticipated marketing expenses, or unforeseen business needs could exhaust our available capital before we are able to generate revenue. The company's very limited cash position creates substantial uncertainty about our ability to execute our business plan and continue operations.

Wildcards Films LLC is not currently generating revenue and has no established revenue history. Our ability to generate revenue depends on the successful completion and distribution of our film project, which is subject to numerous uncertainties and risks. Even if we successfully complete post-production and secure distribution, there is no assurance that the film will generate sufficient revenue to cover our production, post-production, and marketing costs, or to provide any return to investors. The independent film industry is characterized by high failure rates, with the majority of independent films failing to recoup their costs. Revenue generation in the film industry is also typically delayed, often occurring months or years after initial release as revenue is collected from various distribution windows including theatrical, streaming, video-on-demand, international sales, and ancillary markets. We may never achieve profitability, and investors should be prepared for the possibility that the company will generate little or no revenue and that their investment could result in a total loss.

We may require additional capital beyond the funds raised in this offering to fully execute our business plan, respond to competitive pressures, take advantage of distribution opportunities, or address unforeseen challenges. We have no commitments for additional financing and no assurance that additional capital will be available on acceptable terms, if at all. If we raise additional capital through the sale of equity securities, existing investors will experience dilution of their ownership percentage and economic rights. Future equity financings may be on terms that are more favorable to new investors than the terms of this offering, which could further dilute the value of existing investors' holdings. If we are unable to obtain additional financing when needed, we may be required to reduce the scope of our operations, delay or abandon planned marketing and distribution activities, or cease operations entirely. The need for additional capital and the potential for dilution from future financings represent material risks to investors in this offering.

The independent film industry is highly competitive, with thousands of films produced annually competing for limited distribution opportunities, festival slots, audience attention, and revenue. We face competition from established production companies and distributors with significantly greater financial resources, industry relationships, marketing capabilities, and track records of success. Major studios and streaming platforms also produce or acquire independent-style content, further intensifying competition for audience attention and distribution opportunities. The proliferation of content across theatrical, streaming, and digital platforms has created an oversaturated market where even high-quality films struggle to find audiences. Additionally, we compete for the attention of film festivals, critics, influencers, and media outlets, all of which receive far more submissions than they can accommodate. Our ability to compete effectively is limited by our small size, limited resources, lack of established industry relationships, and absence of a proven track record. We may be unable to differentiate our film sufficiently to achieve commercial success in this highly competitive environment.

The success of our film depends on audience demand and reception, which are inherently unpredictable and subject to rapidly changing consumer preferences and cultural trends. Audience tastes in entertainment are highly subjective and can shift quickly based on social trends, competing content, current events, and numerous other factors beyond our control. Even films that receive positive critical reviews may fail to attract audiences, and films that perform well in festival settings may not translate to commercial success. Our marketing strategy includes targeting tennis enthusiasts and leveraging tennis influencer networks, but there is no assurance that this niche audience will be receptive to our film or that this targeting strategy will prove effective. Additionally, the timing of our release, competition from other films and content, and general economic conditions affecting consumer entertainment spending could all adversely impact audience demand for our film. The uncertainty of market demand and audience reception represents a fundamental risk to our ability to generate revenue and achieve our business objectives.

Our business depends on our ownership of and rights to the intellectual property embodied in our film, including the screenplay, performances, music, visual elements, and other creative content. We may face claims that our film infringes upon the intellectual property rights of third parties, including claims related to copyright, trademark, right of publicity upon the intellectual property rights of third parties, including claims related to copyright, trademark, right of publicity, defamation, or other legal theories. Such claims, whether meritorious or not, could be costly to defend, could result in significant monetary damages or settlement payments, could require us to modify or cease distribution of our film, and could damage our reputation. Additionally, we rely on licenses and clearances for music, footage, images, and other third-party content incorporated into our film. Any failure to obtain proper clearances or any dispute regarding the scope or validity of our licenses could result in legal liability and could prevent us from distributing our film. We may also face challenges in protecting our own intellectual property rights, particularly in international markets where enforcement may be difficult or impossible. The costs of defending intellectual property claims or enforcing our own rights could be substantial and could have a material adverse effect on our business and financial condition.

The film and entertainment industry is subject to various federal, state, and local regulations, as well as guild and union requirements that may affect our operations. These may include labor laws, guild agreements with organizations such as the Screen Actors Guild, Directors Guild, and Writers Guild, content rating requirements, advertising and marketing regulations, and laws governing the distribution and exhibition of filmed content. Changes to existing regulations or the adoption of new regulations could increase our compliance costs, require modifications to our business practices, or restrict our ability to distribute our film in certain markets or through certain channels. Additionally, if we have failed to comply with applicable guild requirements, labor laws, or other regulations during production, we could face fines, penalties, claims from cast or crew members, or restrictions on our ability to distribute the film. International distribution may subject us to additional regulatory requirements in foreign jurisdictions, including content censorship laws, local distribution requirements, and tax obligations. Our limited resources and experience may make it difficult to navigate this complex regulatory environment effectively.

Our business is subject to general economic conditions and consumer spending patterns for entertainment. During economic downturns or periods of economic uncertainty, consumers typically reduce discretionary spending on entertainment, including theatrical movie attendance and premium streaming services. Economic factors such as inflation, unemployment, interest rates, and consumer confidence can all affect the demand for entertainment content and the willingness of consumers to spend money on film-related products and experiences. Additionally, the entertainment industry has been significantly impacted by major external events in recent years, including the COVID-19 pandemic, which demonstrated the vulnerability of theatrical distribution and the unpredictability of consumer behavior. Future pandemics, natural disasters, geopolitical events, or other force majeure events could disrupt theatrical exhibition, delay our release plans, reduce audience demand, or otherwise adversely affect our ability to distribute our film and generate revenue. Our small size and limited financial resources make us particularly vulnerable to these external economic and environmental factors.

An investment in Wildcards Films LLC is highly speculative and involves a high degree of risk. Investors should be prepared for the possibility of losing their entire investment. The company is an early-stage business with very limited cash reserves, no revenue, and an unproven business model. The success of the investment depends on numerous factors that are uncertain and beyond the company's control, including the successful completion of post-production, securing distribution, achieving audience acceptance, and generating sufficient revenue to provide returns to investors. The independent film industry is characterized by high failure rates, and the majority of independent films do not recoup their production and marketing costs. Even if the film achieves some level of commercial success, there is no assurance that revenue will be sufficient to provide any return to investors or that investors will recover any portion of their investment. This investment is suitable only for investors who can afford to lose their entire investment and who understand the highly speculative nature of investing in early-stage film projects.

There is no public market for the securities being offered, and none is expected to develop. The securities have not been registered under the Securities Act of 1933 or any state securities laws and may not be sold or transferred except in compliance with applicable securities laws, which may require registration or an available exemption. Investors will be subject to restrictions on transfer and will be required to bear the financial risks of this investment for an indefinite period of time. Even after any applicable holding periods expire, there may be no market for the securities, and investors may be unable to liquidate their investment. The lack of liquidity means that investors will have no ability to respond to changes in the company's performance, economic conditions, or their own financial circumstances by selling their securities. Investors should not invest in these securities unless they are able to hold the investment for an indefinite period and can afford to lose their entire investment.

The founder of Wildcards Films LLC has designated themselves as the lead investor who will sign agreements and make decisions on behalf of all investors in the special purpose vehicle structure. This arrangement creates a significant conflict of interest because the founder has interests both as the operator of the company and as the representative of the investors. Decisions that benefit the company or the founder personally may not align with the interests of other investors. The founder will have access to material non-public information about the company's operations, financial condition, and prospects that other investors may not receive. The founder may face situations where their duties to the company conflict with their role as investor representative, and there is no independent third-party advocate representing the interests of crowdfunding investors. This structure means that investors have no independent representation and must rely on the founder to act in their interests even when doing so may conflict with the founder's interests as company operator. Investors should carefully consider this conflict of interest and the lack of independent investor representation before investing.

DELIVERY & CANCELLATIONS

11. How will the issuer complete the transaction and deliver securities to the investors?

If we reach our target offering amount prior to the deadline, we may conduct an initial closing of the offering early if we provide notice about the new offering deadline at least five business days prior to the new offering deadline (absent a material change that would require an extension of the offering and reconfirmation of the investment commitment). Wefunder will notify investors if we conduct an initial closing. Thereafter, we may conduct additional closings from time to time at our and Wefunder's discretion until the deadline date.

The following describes the process to invest in the Company, including how the Company will complete an Investor's transaction and deliver securities to the investor.

Investor Commitment. The Investor will submit, through Wefunder Portal, a requested investment amount. When doing so, the Investor will also execute an investment contract with the Company ("Investment Agreement"), using the Investor's electronic signature.

Acceptance of the Investment. If the Investor Agreement is complete, the Investor's commitment will typically be recorded within a few minutes. The commitment will also be available on the Investor's "My Investments" screen on the wefunder.com website. After the offering closes, the contract will be counter-signed by the Company. The executed investment contract will then be sent to the investor via email, and is also available to download on the "My Investments" screen.

Investor Transfer of Funds. Upon receiving confirmation that an investment has been accepted, the Investor will be responsible for transferring funds from a source that is accepted by Wefunder Portal into an escrow account held with a third party bank on behalf of issuers offering securities through Wefunder Portal.

Progress of the Offering. The Investor will receive periodic email updates on the progress of the offering, including total amounts raised at any given time, and will be notified by email and through the "My Investments" screen when the target offering amount is met.

Closing: Original Deadline. Unless we meet the target offering amount early, Investor funds will be transferred from the escrow account to the Company on the deadline date identified in the Cover Page to this Form C and the Company's Wefunder Portal Profile.

Early Closings. If the target offering amount is met prior to the original deadline date, we may close the offering earlier, but no less than 21 days after the date on which information about the Company, including this Form C, is posted on our Wefunder Portal Profile. We will reschedule the offering deadline, and at least five days prior to the new deadline, investors will receive notice of it by email and through the "My Investments" screen. At the time of the new deadline, your funds will be transferred to the Company from the escrow account, provided that the target offering amount is still met after any cancellations.

Book Entry. Investments may be in book entry form. This means that the Investor may not receive a certificate representing his or her investment. Each investment will be recorded in our books and records and will be recorded in each Investors' "My Investments" screen. The Investor will also be emailed the Investment Agreement again. The Investment Agreement will also be available on the "My Investments" screen. At the option of the Company, you may receive an electronic certificate.

12. How can an investor cancel an investment commitment?

> NOTE: Investors may cancel an investment commitment until 48 hours prior to the deadline identified in these offering materials.
> The intermediary will notify investors when the target offering amount has been met. If the issuer reaches the target offering amount prior to the deadline identified in the offering materials, it may close the offering early if it provides notice about the new offering deadline at least five business days prior to such new offering deadline.
> If an investor does not cancel an investment commitment before the 48-hour period prior to the offering deadline, the funds will be released to the issuer upon closing of the offering and the investor will receive securities in exchange for his or her investment.
> If an investor does not reconfirm his or her investment commitment after a material change is made to the offering, the investor's investment commitment will be canceled and the committed funds will be returned.

> An Investor's right to cancel. An Investor may cancel his or her investment commitment at any time until 48 hours prior to the offering deadline.
> If there is a material change to the terms of the offering or the information provided to the Investor about the offering and/or the Company, the Investor will be provided notice of the change and must re-confirm his or her investment commitment within five business days of receipt of the notice. If the Investor does not reconfirm, he or she will receive notifications disclosing that the commitment was cancelled, the reason for the cancellation, and the refund amount that the investor is required to receive. If a material change occurs within five business days of the maximum number of days the offering is to remain open, the offering will be extended to allow for a period of five business days for the investor to reconfirm.
> If the Investor cancels his or her investment commitment during the period when cancellation is permissible, or does not reconfirm a commitment in the case of a material change to the investment, or the offering does not close, all of the Investor's funds will be returned within five business days.
> Within five business days of cancellation of an offering by the Company, the Company will give each investor notification of the cancellation, disclose the reason for the cancellation, identify the refund amount the Investor will receive, and refund the Investor's funds.

Restrictions on Transfer of the Securities Being Offered:

The securities being offered may not be transferred by any purchaser of such securities during the one year period beginning when the securities were issued, unless such securities are transferred:

to the issuer;

to an accredited investor;

as part of an offering registered with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission; or to a member of the family of the purchaser or the equivalent, to a trust controlled by the purchaser, to a trust created for the benefit of a member of the family of the purchaser or the equivalent, or in connection with the death or divorce of the purchaser or other similar circumstance.

Restrictions on Transfer of the Securities Being Offered:

The securities being offered may not be transferred by any purchaser of such securities during the one year period beginning when the securities were issued, unless such securities are transferred:

1. to the issuer;
2. to an accredited investor;
3. as part of an offering registered with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission; or
4. to a member of the family of the purchaser or the equivalent, to a trust controlled by the purchaser, to a trust created for the benefit of a member of the family of the purchaser or the equivalent, or in connection with the death or divorce of the purchaser or other similar circumstance.

NOTE: The term "accredited investor" means any person who comes within any of the categories set forth in Rule 501(a) of Regulation D, or who the seller reasonably believes comes within any of such categories, at the time of the sale of the securities to that person.

The term "member of the family of the purchaser or the equivalent" includes a child, stepchild, grandchild, parent, stepparent, grandparent, spouse or spousal equivalent, sibling, mother-in-law, father-in-law, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, brother-in-law, or sister-in-law of the purchaser, and includes adoptive relationships. The term "spousal equivalent" means a cohabitant occupying a relationship generally equivalent to that of a spouse.

Description of Issuer's Securities

17. What other securities or classes of securities of the issuer are outstanding? Describe the material terms of any other outstanding securities or classes of securities of the issuer.

Class of Security	Authorized	Outstanding	Voting rights

Class of Security	Total Pool
Warrants	None
Options	None

Describe any other rights:

N/A: this is an LLC with no issued units

18. How may the rights of the securities being offered be materially limited, diluted or qualified by the rights of any other class of security identified above?

Because the Investor holds no voting rights in the company, the holders of a majority-in-interest of voting rights in the Company could limit the Investor's rights in a material way. For example, those interest holders could vote to change the terms of the agreements governing the Company's operations or cause the Company to engage in additional offerings (including potentially a public offering). These decisions could affect gross revenues and diminish payments made to Investors.

Based on the risk that the company may never realize revenues or face a Default Event, the Investor may never see any returns.

Additional risks related to the rights of other security holders are discussed below, in Question 20.

19. Are there any differences not reflected above between the securities being offered and each other class of security of the issuer?

No.

20. How could the exercise of rights held by the principal shareholders identified in Question 6 above affect the purchasers of the securities being offered?

As holders of a majority-in-interest of voting rights in the Company, the unitholders may make decisions with which the Investor disagrees, or that negatively affect the gross revenues of the Company, and the Investor will have no recourse to change these decisions. The Investor's interests may conflict with those of other investors, and there is no guarantee that the Company will develop in a way that is optimal for or advantageous to the Investor.

For example, the unitholders may change the terms of the Operating Agreement for the company, change the terms of securities issued by the Company, change the management of the Company, and even force out minority holders of securities. The unitholders may make changes that affect the tax treatment of the Company in ways that are unfavorable to you but favorable to them. Other holders of securities of the Company may also have access to more information than the Investor, leaving the Investor at a disadvantage with respect to any decisions regarding the securities he or she owns.

The unitholders have the right to redeem their securities at any time. unitholders could decide to force the Company to redeem their securities at a time that is not favorable to the Investor and is damaging to the Company. Investors' exit may affect the value of the Company and/or its viability.

In cases where the rights of holders of convertible debt, SAFEs, or other outstanding options or warrants are exercised, or if new awards are granted under our equity compensation plans, an Investor's interests in the Company may be negatively affected.

Based on the risks described above, the Investor could lose all or part of his or her investment in the securities in this offering, and may never see positive returns.

21. How are the securities being offered being valued? Include examples of methods for how such securities may be valued by the issuer in the future, including during subsequent corporate actions.

The offering price for the securities offered pursuant to this Form C has been determined arbitrarily by the Company, and does not necessarily bear any relationship to the Company's book value, assets, earnings or other generally accepted valuation criteria. In determining the offering price, the Company did not employ investment banking firms or other outside organizations to make an independent appraisal or evaluation. Accordingly, the offering price should not be considered to be indicative of the actual value of the securities offered hereby.

In the future, we will perform valuations of our common units that take into account factors such as the following:

- unrelated third party valuations of our common units;
- the price at which we sell other securities, such as convertible debt or preferred units, in light of the rights, preferences and privileges of our those securities relative to those of our common units;
- our results of operations, financial position and capital resources;
- current business conditions and projections;
- the lack of marketability of our common units;
- the hiring of key personnel and the experience of our management;
- the introduction of new products;
- the risk inherent in the development and expansion of our products;
- our stage of development and material risks related to our business;
- the likelihood of achieving a liquidity event, such as an initial public offering or a sale of our company given the prevailing market conditions and the nature and history of our business;
- industry trends and competitive environment;
- trends in consumer spending, including consumer confidence;
- overall economic indicators, including gross domestic product, employment, inflation and interest rates; and
- the general economic outlook.

We will analyze factors such as those described above using a combination of financial and market-based methodologies to determine our business enterprise value. For example, we may use methodologies that assume that businesses operating in the same industry will share similar characteristics and that the Company's value will correlate to those characteristics, and/or methodologies that compare transactions in similar securities issued by us that were conducted in the market.

22. What are the risks to purchasers of the securities relating to minority ownership in the issuer?

An Investor in the promissory notes holds no position in the Company and will have no voting rights in the Company, and thus will be limited as to its ability to control or influence the governance and operations of the Company.

The marketability and value of the Investor's interest in the Company will depend upon many factors outside the control of the Investor. The Company will be managed by its officers and be governed in accordance with the strategic direction and decision-making of its management, and the Investor will have no independent right to name or remove an officer or member of the management of the Company.

23. What are the risks to purchasers associated with corporate actions, including additional issuances of securities, issuer repurchases of securities, a sale of the issuer or of assets of the issuer or transactions with related parties?

Additional issuances of securities. Following the Investor's investment in the Company, the Company may sell interests to additional investors, which will dilute the percentage interest of the Investor in the Company. The Investor may have the opportunity to increase its investment in the Company in such a transaction, but such opportunity cannot be assured. The amount of additional financing needed by the Company, if any, will depend upon the maturity and objectives of the Company. The declining of an opportunity or the inability of the Investor to make a follow-on investment, or the lack of an opportunity to make such a follow-on investment, may result in substantial dilution of the Investor's interest in the Company.

Issuer repurchases of securities. The Company may have authority to repurchase its securities from unitholders, which may serve to decrease any liquidity in the market for such securities, decrease the percentage interests held by other similarly situated investors to the Investor, and create pressure on the Investor to sell its securities to the Company concurrently.

A sale of the issuer or of assets of the issuer. As a minority owner of the Company, the Investor will have limited or no ability to influence a potential sale of the Company or a substantial portion of its assets. Thus, the Investor will rely upon the executive management of the Company to manage the Company so as to maximize value for unitholders. Accordingly, the success of the Investor's investment in the Company will depend in large part upon the skill and expertise of the executive management of the Company. If the Management of the Company authorizes a sale of all or a part of the Company, or a disposition of a substantial portion of the Company's assets, there can be no guarantee that the value received by the Investor, together with the fair market estimate of the value remaining in the Company, will be equal to or exceed the value of the Investor's initial investment in the Company.

Transactions with related parties. The Investor should be aware that there will be occasions when the Company may encounter potential conflicts of interest in its operations. On any issue involving conflicts of interest, the executive management of the Company will be guided by their good faith judgement as to the Company's best interests. The Company may engage in transactions with affiliates, subsidiaries or other related parties, which may be on terms which are not arm's-length, but will be in all cases consistent with the duties of the management of the Company to its unitholders. By acquiring an interest in the Company, the Investor will be deemed to have acknowledged the existence of any such actual or potential conflicts of interest and to have waived any claim with respect to any liability arising from the existence of any such conflict of interest.

24. Describe the material terms of any indebtedness of the issuer:

Loan
Amount: $250,000.00
Outstanding principal plus interest: $250,000.00 as of 11/13/2026
Investors receive 120% recoupment followed by 50% of net profits.

INSTRUCTION TO QUESTION 24: name the creditor, amount owed, interest rate, maturity date, and any other material terms.

25. What other exempt offerings has the issuer conducted within the past three years?

Offering date	Exemption	Security type	Amount sold	Use of proceeds
No exempt offerings.

26. Was or is the issuer or any entities controlled by or under common control with the issuer a party to any transaction since the beginning of the issuer's last fiscal year, or any currently proposed transaction, where the amount involved exceeds five percent of the aggregate amount of capital raised by the issuer in reliance on Section 4(a)(6) of the Securities Act during the preceding 12- month period, including the amount the issuer seeks to raise in the current offering, in which any of the following persons had or is to have a direct or indirect material interest:

4. or any immediate family member of any of the foregoing persons.

Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations

Overview of the Business and Financial Condition

Wildcard is a early-stage company.

We are an early-stage company and are currently operating at approximately break-even, with no material positive or negative cash flows from operations in recent periods. There can be no assurance that this break-even performance will continue in future periods.

As of November 10, 2026, we did not have any cash or cash equivalents on hand.

Our ability to continue operations is dependent on managing our expenses and, if necessary, obtaining additional financing.

This discussion should be read in conjunction with the financial statements and related notes included in this offering statement.

Business and Operating Uncertainty

Our business operates in an environment subject to various risks, uncertainties, and changing conditions, which makes it difficult to evaluate our business, financial condition, and prospects and may limit the comparability of our results of operations from period to period.

Financial Condition

As of December 31, 2025, our total assets were $0 and our current and non-current liabilities, as reflected in available financial statement fields, were $0.

Our financial statements reflect an early-stage company with limited operating history. Investors should not place undue reliance on historical financial information given the company's limited operating history and the likelihood that future results will differ from historical results.

Liquidity and Capital Resources

As of December 31, 2025, we did not have any cash or cash equivalents on hand.

Based on our current operations, we are operating at approximately break-even, with monthly net cash flow of approximately $0.

Our monthly net cash burn or profit may vary significantly from month to month due to the timing of receipts and expenditures and other short-term factors. As a result, period-to-period comparisons may not be meaningful.

Based on our current plan, we expect to have sufficient cash to fund operations for at least the next 12 months.

To date, our operations have been funded through minimal cash resources and have not included any external financing.

Liquidity Assumptions

Our assessment of our liquidity and ability to fund operations is not a projection and is based on current assumptions regarding operating expenses, cash requirements, and capital needs. These assumptions may change, and actual results may differ materially due to changes in operating conditions, timing of receipts and payments, and other factors.

Dependence on Additional Financing

There can be no assurance that additional financing will be available on acceptable terms, or at all. If we are unable to raise additional capital when needed, we may be required to materially reduce or suspend operations.

Indebtedness and Capital Structure

As of the date of this offering statement, we had total outstanding indebtedness consisting of 1 loan and approximately $250,000 in aggregate principal obligations. The material terms of such indebtedness are described in Item 24 of this Form C.

(For the avoidance of doubt, SAFEs are not treated as indebtedness.)

We have not conducted any exempt offerings or raised capital in the past three years.

Known Trends, Events, and Uncertainties

Management is not currently aware of any known trends, events, or uncertainties that are reasonably likely to have a material adverse effect on our financial condition or results of operations over the next 12 months.

The absence of a discussion of any particular trend, event, or uncertainty should not be interpreted to mean that such matters do not exist; rather, it reflects management's judgment based on information currently available.

Changes Since the Date of the Financial Statements

There have been no material changes in our operations or financial condition since the date of the financial statements included in this offering.

Impact of This Offering

The proceeds from this offering are expected to be used for sound design final mix, original score/music licensing, and graphics. The timing and extent of our use of proceeds will depend on the amount of proceeds raised and future operating conditions. Additional detail regarding our planned use of proceeds is provided in Item 10 of this Form C.

There can be no assurance that the proceeds of this offering will be sufficient to fund our operations or achieve our business objectives.

Certain information relevant to understanding our financial condition and liquidity is presented elsewhere in this offering statement, including in the financial statements, related notes, and the sections describing indebtedness and prior financings.

Forward-Looking Statements

This discussion contains forward-looking statements that are based on management's current expectations and assumptions.

Actual results may differ materially from those expressed or implied by these statements.
